

Double Dispatch significa "despacho duplo". Nesse contexto, a palavra "despacho" significa a delegação de parte da funcionalidade da classe para outra. A adição da palavra "duplo" significa que essa delegação ocorre duas vezes. Sendo assim, o nome do padrão acaba ressaltando sua principal característica, que é a da classe que recebe a chamada do método devolvê-la para um objeto recebido como parâmetro, o qual executará uma operação na classe que chamou o método.
